

I use XM Radio's Traffic and Weather information when driving around DC. You know what a nightmare traffic is around here and XM's service is the only one providing continuous updates. Local stations broadcast a very short traffic outlook three to four times an hour, which is good for a general picture before heading out. But, when you're in the middle of it, you need quick tactical info. The local stations don't provide that. XM does.